

Healthy Food Program Was Fun, Educational and Yummy

by Melissa Sites

Under the broad shady leaves of a pawpaw tree, Shaymar Higgs led a healthy food program near Springhill Lake Recreation Center, hosted by CHEARS (Chesapeake Education, Arts and Research Society). Founder and director of The Space Free Art for All, located at Beltway Plaza, Higgs shared a table laden with strange and exotic looking fruits. Among the crowd were CHEARS stalwarts Bob and Maggie Cahalan, along with Carolyn Lambright-Davis, convener.

Higgs brought several fruits from Asia including the lychee and the Asian pear. Asian pears – round, crunchy fruit – are a great alternative to an apple with a lot less sugar, according to Higgs. To eat the lychee, one must pinch off the leathery skin and nibble the grape-like fruit from around a large seed. Lambright-Davis collected the seeds so that her Earth Squad kids could try growing plants from them.

The crowd described many of the fruits Higgs offered as juicy and refreshing. He offered two large dragon fruits (pitaya or pitahaya), one with red flesh and one with white. The red fruit was deemed sweeter, the white fruit muskier. These fruits grow on a cactus similar to prickly pear. Higgs, who studied cooking and worked in fine dining, recommended blending dragon fruit with coconut, mango or passionfruit, advising cooks to “use a spoon to scoop it out because the skin is bitter.”

When he lived in Florida, Higgs was able to grow bananas, sand apples (a type of pawpaw), mangos, starfruit and coconut. “The starfruit should be orange,” he said. “You peel the fins off and pop out the seeds.”

The crowd also enjoyed golden kiwi, golden honeydew and

Registration for new students is ongoing at all local public schools. In order to register, parents must provide a government-issued photo identification, an original birth certificate for the student with a seal and the parents' names listed, health documents including immunization records and proof of residency.

Out of Control Driver Smashes Hole in Building; No Injuries

by Amy Hansen

No injuries and no overall structural damage were the positive takeaways from a freak accident on Sunday, August 29, evening when a car careened out of control on Lakeside Drive and plowed into an apartment building. The driver, who was headed south going toward Lakecrest Drive, picked up speed as she went downhill.

“The theory is that some people go to press the brake and end up pressing on the gas,” said Captain Mark Sagan of the Greenbelt Police Department, adding there was no indication of drugs or alcohol.

The driver hit a parking sign as well as the wooden sign that says Lakeside, went up onto the University Square Apartments lawn, missing several parked cars, hit a small tree, flipped the car and plowed into the building. No one was in the apartment at the time. Witnesses reported hearing a large boom as the car hit the tan-brick facade and created a hole.

“We called the county out to make sure there was no structural damage [to the apartment

Election 2021

Applications for Mail-in Ballots Should Arrive Soon

by Kathleen Gallagher

There is still quite a while before the Greenbelt city election (Tuesday, November 2), but some deadlines might be closer than you think. This year for the first time the city is offering mail-in voting, in response to how successful it was in Maryland's elections last year, as well as in response to the ongoing threat presented by the Covid-19 pandemic.

Voters who wish to vote by mail will need to take some action soon but will then be rewarded later by having their ballot arrive at their door. As was explained in the postcard mailed to registered voters earlier this year, on Tuesday, September 7 the city expects to mail out an application form to all currently registered voters for them to request a mail-in ballot if they want it. Those who wish to receive their ballot by mail should fill out the application form and mail it back to the city by Monday, September 27. Those who prefer to use a different voting method should not return the application form, since once a ballot is issued to a voter, the voter should use that form to vote.

Voters who do return their application to request a ballot will receive their ballot by mail. They can mail the executed ballot to City Clerk Bonita Anderson at 25 Crescent Road, Greenbelt 20770, or they can put it in the locked-drop at the east door (the one closest to the flag poles) of the Municipal Building.

House Manager News Review Ad Is Likely to Be a Scam

by Cathie Meetre

It looked innocent enough. “A private individual seeking an experienced, detail-oriented House Manager/Personal Assistant to assist a very busy family” had the News Review insert both a display and a classified ad to recruit such person. The ads were paid via PayPal and the ad desk saw no reason to be suspicious. But it now seems that it is extremely likely that these ads were scams. They ran in the newspaper on August 5 and 12 – see box for what to do if you responded.

The newspaper was warned by a member who, on seeing the ad, smelled a rat. She googled some of the elements of it and found identically-worded ads with the same email address in the Narragansett, R.I., local newspaper and the Kern Valley Sun in Lake Isabella, Calif. Further checking revealed more occurrences.

Tell Tale Clues

The News Review urges its readers to be aware of the possibility of scams. In this case, although there was nothing overtly suspicious about the ad itself, a first interaction with the advertiser was more concerning. An employer who doesn’t require proof of an applicant’s identity, request references or schedule an interview is to be suspected. Any potential employer should be willing to say who they are, where they are located and offer evidence of their existence. To the best of the News Review’s knowledge, nobody has yet suffered any negative impact from the ads it ran.

Avoiding Scams

An online publication by the Federal Trade Commission offers advice on what individuals can do to protect themselves from scams of this type, called job-scams (consumer.ftc.gov/articles/job-scams). They warn that, “If you apply, the person who hires you might send you a check. They’ll tell you to keep part of the money for your services and then send the rest to someone else. That is a scam. A legitimate employer will never ask you to do that.”

Meanwhile, the News Review will also be more aware on behalf of our readers but cannot guarantee to spot all the bad apples up front. The News Review encourages readers to alert us when they are concerned about the bona fides of an advertiser.

The News Review has reported this activity to the Federal Trade Commission.

Any readers who responded to this ad should immediately cut off communication and change any passwords or alert any banks whose information may have been compromised. If they have paid any money, they should stop payment if at all possible.

Letters to the Editor

Plea for a Greenbelt Eviction Moratorium

Councilmembers, please urgently reconsider your previous narrow rejection of a Greenbelt-specific moratorium.

In one Greenbelt apartment complex alone there are 43 homes among scores of Greenbelt households scheduled for eviction in the coming month, according to a list reportedly released by Prince George’s County officials. This imminent threat to dozens of our neighbors came just before the Supreme Court ended the CDC moratorium on evictions.

Here are two relevant excerpts from the Call to Action below, released by the National Low Income Housing Coalition:

The Supreme Court ruled today to end the temporary stay on a lower court ruling seeking to overturn the federal eviction moratorium issued by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC). In doing so, the Supreme Court’s ruling invalidates the federal eviction moratorium, eliminating vital eviction protections that have kept millions of households – predominantly people of color – stably housed.

Immediate Action

With the Supreme Court striking down the eviction moratorium, state and local governments must take immediate action by:

Creating or extending state and local eviction moratoriums.

The newly surging Delta Covid-19 variant, low vaccination rates in communities with high eviction filings and the slow rate of distributing Emergency Rental Assistance make the necessity of eviction moratoriums abundantly clear. Moratoriums will also provide state and local governments more time to ramp up their efforts to distribute emergency rental assistance to households in need.

Councilmembers, please urgently reconsider your previous narrow rejection of a Greenbelt-specific moratorium!

Festival Preempts Farmers Market

I went to the Farmers Market this morning and heard many say, “see you next week,” only to hear the Farmers Market is closed for Labor Day weekend due to the Festival. I think many are confused or thought the market was still going to be open due to the much smaller fair this year because of Covid-19 precautions.

Kathryn Beard

Editor’s Note: There has never been a Farmers Market on Labor Day weekend. The Market will return on Sunday, September 12 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Community Events

St. Hugh's Offers Bingo On Labor Day Only

The St. Hugh's Labor Day Weekend Bingo will be held for only one afternoon this year. On Monday, September 6, Bingo will run from noon to 6 p.m., with the traditional final "blackout bingo game" beginning at 5:30 p.m., on the lawn near the Community Center.

There are some changes this year. There will not be any tents or memorial games. Players will be using paper bingo sheets and daubers generously donated by the Greenbelt Volunteer Fire Department. Picnic table seating will be first come first served. Players can bring their own card tables and folding chairs from home for extra seating. Only bottled water (no soda) will be sold.

St. Hugh's Ladies of Charity is the sponsor for this event to benefit their programs for those in need in the Greenbelt area, including the St. Hugh's Food Pantry. They are grateful for the 31 Eleanor Roosevelt High School student volunteers who will be selling the bingo.

Hopefully next year, Bingo 2022 will include the usual memorial games for Tess Osborne, Liz Labukas, Thomas X. White, Debbie Reese, Michael Maxwell, Jr. and Kelly Ivy.

Join Compost Tour At Roosevelt Center

On Saturday, September 4, during Information Day at the Labor Day Festival, join master composter Danny Lewis at 2 p.m. for an As-the-Worm-Turns tour of composting operations happening in the center of Greenbelt. Meet Lewis at the Green Team table in the Roosevelt Center plaza.

Lewis will lead a short walk to the three-bin hot composting station near the Aquatic Center, where food waste from the Co-op Supermarket is transformed into compost wormfood, followed by a visit to the worm condos behind the New Deal Café, where worms supercharge that compost.

Labor Day Festival Trumps Market

The Labor Day Festival Committee has always had dibs on the parking lot for the Labor Day Festival and the Farmers Market takes Labor Day Sunday off. This year is no exception. The Farmers Market will not be held Sunday, September 5 but will pick up again as usual on September 12 at its usual time of 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Fall fruits and vegetables will be in abundance as the harvest comes home.

Museum to Host Retro Town Fair

On Sunday, September 5, the Greenbelt Museum invites gardeners, bakers, canners and crafters to enter their items into the Retro Town Fair. Download, print and fill out an entry form at greenbeltmuseum.org/exhibitsevents (only one entry per person per category). Then drop off the item and form on the grounds of 10-A and 10-B Crescent between 10 and 11:30 a.m. on September 5. Judging will begin at 11:30. All entries will be displayed for public viewing from 1 to 4 p.m. All entries must be picked up no later than 5 p.m.

GCAN Reviews Summer Progress

The September virtual meeting of the Greenbelt Climate Action Network (GCAN) will take place on Wednesday, September 8 from 7 to 9 p.m. The Zoom link is available at chears.org/gcan. This month, there will be a series of brief progress reports on priority issues that have been followed, including:

- Federal Budget Reconciliation Plan: report on the August lobby visit with House Majority Leader Steny Hoyer to discuss ending fossil fuel subsidies and refining the Clean Energy Payment Program portion of the bill.
- County Climate Action Plan: final draft to be submitted in September
- School Board Climate Change Action Plan
- Greenbelt city goals for greenhouse gas reductions: discussions with GreenACES committee
- 495/270 Highway Expansion Plan fights
- Maglev: multiple attempts to stop it
- PG-NAACP: new committee on environment and climate justice
- Maryland Legislative Coalition, Climate Justice Wing: early plans for January General Assembly Session
- PG Sierra Club Compost Team: plans to educate and encourage 27 local municipalities to begin compost programs in their towns
- Break Free From Plastic Pollution Act: campaign strategy for this federal legislation.

There will be something of interest to everyone.

As always, the meeting will close with an overview of upcoming events. See chears.org/gcan/monthly-meetings/upcoming-events. This calendar will be updated prior to the meeting.

For more information, or to suggest events that should be added to the calendar, email Lore Rosenthal at Simplicity-GroupsMD@gmail.com or call her at 301-345-2234 (landline, no text).

Both Local Volunteers, Blood Donors Needed

Appointments are available for a blood drive at the Community Center on Friday, October 15 from 12:30 to 6 p.m. Register at redcrossblood.org/give.html/find-drive. Walk-ins are not permitted during the ongoing pandemic, so register early for an appointment to make a life-giving donation.

The Red Cross needs new volunteers to support disaster shelters, both for registration, etc., and to address people's health needs and provide hands-on care. If you are an RN, LPN, LVN, APRN, NP, EMT, paramedic, MD/DO or PA with a current and unencumbered license, this position could be right for you.

Blood and platelet donors are needed. Eligible donors can help overcome the critical need for blood and ensure blood is readily available by making an appointment to give by using the Red Cross Blood Donor App, visiting RedCrossBlood.org, calling 1-800-RED CROSS (1-800-733-2767) or enabling the Blood Donor Skill on any Alexa Echo device.

CHEARS to Hold Garden Workshop

CHEARS Three Sisters Garden Workshop: Preparing for a Fall and Spring Vegetable Garden will be held on Saturday, September 11 from 4 to 5:30 p.m. at the Three Sisters Demonstration Garden behind the Community Center, 15 Crescent Road, next to the flag pole.

Yes, there's currently a heat wave and spring is far away, but there are benefits to growing food in the fall and preparing for the upcoming spring. CHEARS volunteers will host a sprinkle-or-shine in-person workshop with Judy Walsh-Mellet, a Mount Rainier resident and lifelong gardener/master gardener extraordinaire, who will be sharing some tips about how and when to get started on steps that will make for a successful fall garden and, if there's time, how to prepare for next year's spring garden. A Q&A will follow if time allows.

Consider biking or walking to the Community Center or if driving, park at either the Community Center or the Roosevelt Center main parking lot. Since seating is at a minimum, bring a chair or blanket and of course water. Moderate to heavy rains will cancel this event. For more details, email Joe Robbins at robbins629@msn.com.

Three Sisters Garden Holds Poetry Reading

On Sunday, September 12 from 5 to 7 p.m. enjoy a poetry reading at Three Sisters Garden-East in Schrom Hills Park. Tour and relax in the garden before joining the poetry reading group. Bring a favorite poem or just enjoy listening to others. Bring a chair as seating may be limited.

More Community Events are located throughout the paper.

Arts Advisory Board Meets Sept. 7

The Greenbelt Arts Advisory Board will meet on Tuesday, September 7 at 7 p.m. Weather permitting, the meeting will take place outdoors at the Three Sisters Garden in Schrom Hills Park, located at 6915 Hanover Parkway. (Bring your own seating.) In case of inclement weather, the meeting will be held on Zoom. Topics will include proposed updates to recognition group policies and procedures. For additional information, email Nicole DeWald at ndewald@greenbeltmd.gov or call 301-474-8000, Mondays through Fridays, 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Festival of Lights Call for Artists

Artists, artisans, authors, illustrators and nonprofit groups are invited to apply through Friday, September 10 to participate in the Greenbelt Recreation annual Juried Art and Craft Fair. Conditions permitting, the show will be held in person at the Community Center on December 4 and 5, and also online from November 26 through December 19. Vendors may participate on-site, online or both. The show features original wares created by participating artists. Media typically span a wide range from wood, glass, ceramic and metalwork to wall art, fiber arts, toys, books and edible goods. Kit crafts and imported crafts are not permitted, and additional restrictions apply. Information and applications are linked at greenbeltmd.gov/arts.

HUG WALK Returns

RUAK (Random Unselfish Acts of Kindness) is again organizing the annual HUG WALK (Help Unite Greenbelt With A Little Kindness) to be held on Sunday, October 10, rain or shine.

Any group that wishes to join more than 40 civic, social and religious groups that are already co-sponsoring the event should contact RUAK at spreadruak@gmail.com or Robert Goldberg-Strassler at 301-345-8755 by September 26.

golden berries. Related to a tomatillo, the golden berry is a small round orange fruit that grows inside a fine papery husk on a cucumber-like vine close to the ground. Also called a “ground cherry” or “husk cherry,” it thrives locally and has a musky, cantaloupe flavor.

Delicious fresh figs were also shared. Fig trees are growing at each of Greenbelt’s Three Sisters Demonstration Gardens, located at the Community Center, Schrom Hills Park and, of course, Franklin Park. Maggie Cahalan noted, “The Community Center tree is loaded with figs.” She explained, “The metaphor of the Three Sisters (corn, beans and squash) was chosen because each of these plants contributes something different, but when planted together they are stronger – hence the three neighborhoods of Greenbelt each are different but when together as community the whole is stronger.” The goal is to demonstrate permaculture, organic land care and provide a space for uniting the center, east and west areas of Greenbelt.

Although the pawpaws growing in the grove were not yet ripe, Bob Cahalan pointed out that “you can pick it before it’s ripe, and ripen it inside a paper bag with a banana.” The pawpaw trees were able to withstand flooding that damaged other plantings in the Food Forest. Pawpaws are North America’s largest native fruit. Nearby native persimmon trees have not yet begun to produce fruit.

After the tastings, volunteers helped pull porcelain berry vines off the American cranberry bushes. Porcelain berry vines are related to grapes, with similar leaves, but the berries are a shocking robin’s egg blue and are not good to eat. Volunteers who would like to help with planting and maintaining the Food Forest should email maggie@chears.org to find out how to help, or lambrightdavis@yahoo.com specifically to help at Franklin Park.

Many plants are successfully flourishing in the Food Forest, initially planned in 2013-14, including pawpaws, American cranberry, fig, bush cherries, linden, blackberries, bayberry, ostrich fern, persimmon, Nanking cherry, Joel bush cherry, blueberry and raspberries. This fall, CHEARS will schedule workdays to replant some varieties that were lost due to soggy conditions (for example, hazelnuts), to be replaced by hardier varieties for those conditions, possibly fox grapes, as well as thornless blackberries, persimmons, elderberries, gooseberries, chestnuts and additional Nanking cherry. “We have a lot of trees and shrubs from our seed project,” Maggie Cahalan said. The Three Sisters Gardens and Food Forest are meant to be demonstration projects, but anyone can pick the food, or it can be eaten by animals. “Two hazelnut trees that CHEARS planted in Schrom Hills are now producing hazelnuts,” she said.

CHEARS also announced the availability of fall cover crop seeds (radish, clover, buckwheat, rye and milkweed) and edible tree and shrub seedlings including pawpaw, persimmon, elderberry, gooseberry, blackberry, Chinese chestnut, bristly locust and black cherry.

various games, activities and entertainment events throughout the Festival. On Monday, the Labor Day Parade will begin at 10 a.m., followed by Bingo on the lawn in front of the Community Center.

There will be no carnival rides this year, and there will be only two booths: the police and information booths, both near the Municipal Building. Throughout the weekend there will be food trucks in the nearby parking lot: Simple Pleasures, Big D’s Wings, Good to Da Bone BBQ, Little Italy Sausage Company, Funnel Fare, MMpanadas, PKG’s Mobile Kitchen and Jammin Flava.

Jane Young is a member of the Labor Day Festival Committee.

Apartment Flood Victims Ask for Help from Council

by Matthew Arbach

Residents Carol and Walter Johnson and Lisa Stephens are struggling to recover their lives after the catastrophic flooding on August 9 of their units at the Parke Crescent Apartments. Neighbor Priscilla Weeks, who has a unit above, has also found her home to be nearly unlivable due to the stench of mold that grew during days of standing water in the flooded apartments. These residents, as well as others involved, shared their traumatic stories with the Greenbelt City Council on Monday, August 23. Details of the event were described in an article in the August 19 News Review.

Council was deeply sorry for the incident, and adamant that it should never have happened, as an identical event affected the same residents in 2018. They stressed that the apartments should never have been rented again.

Walter Johnson related that he has not been able to re-renter his apartment to assess the damage to his belongings, as the apartment has been closed up in 96-degree heat with no functioning AC for two weeks. He and his wife now reside in a hotel, which is a drain on their resources, and are looking to relocate to Baltimore.

Stephens, displaced from her home for a second time, has also experienced devastation to her belongings, which were boxed after the retreat of the water. She has been living with a friend and is uncertain where she will reside in the future.

Walter Johnson explained that the rental insurance policy that he was forced to sign stipulated no financial restitution from the event. Council was keen to explore the possible illegalities of this policy.

City Attorney Todd Pounds, who has been a liaison to these residents, described the downhill, bottleneck layout of the affected area, which led to the accumulation of the stormwater. Public Works Director Jim Sterling determined that the drainpipe in the impacted area was working at full capacity. Councilmember Rodney Roberts advised a video analysis of the drain to be certain.

The Johnsons, Stephens and Weeks expressed their frustration with the lack of accountability and uncertainty where the responsibility lies in addressing and alleviating the situation – whether it is the county, city or property owners. The residents appealed to council to advocate for them in their negotiations with the property owners, something council was focused on doing.

The consensus of the meeting was that a confluence of the property ownership, the city and the county are required to redress this issue fully.

Flooding at 51 Crescent Road reached Walter Johnson's waist after the heavy rains on August 9.

City Manager Nicole Ard said that she would reach out to the city Code Enforcement to assist with repairs and the county's Health Department to assess the situation and would connect these residents with local organizations that can help them recover. Pounds advised that the county's Rent Escrow process can hold owners accountable to return a unit to livability, which the city is now assisting the residents with. Councilmember Silke Pope recommended possible assistance from Greenbelt CARES.

Neighbor Jennifer Moore echoed the sentiment of the meeting by saying that it is time for the property owners to address their "negligence" in this matter, asking for pressure from the city and county, because at the moment, "no one's holding them to the fire."

Baltimore City Judge Rules Against BWRR: Appeal Likely

by Donna Hoffmeister

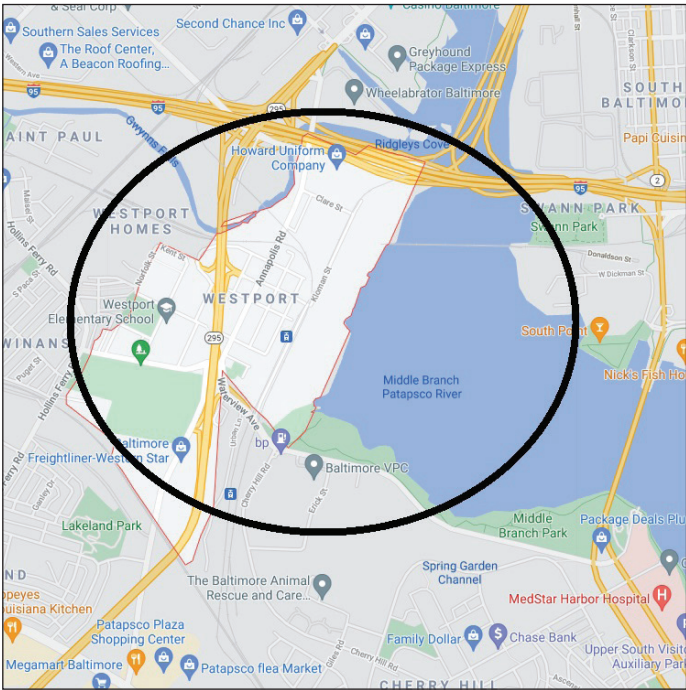

On August 30, Baltimore City Circuit Court Judge Kendra Ausby denied the maglev builder's attempt to condemn property in the Baltimore neighborhood of Westport, property that is critical to all versions of the planned maglev connection between Washington and Baltimore. Ausby dismissed the eminent domain case after a 30-minute hearing. Lawyers for the maglev builders, Baltimore Washington Rapid Rail (BWRR), said they will appeal the decision.

The land in question, which is south and west of Baltimore and runs along the Patapsco River, is owned by Stonewall Capital, a Monkton-based company. Their attorneys explained that Stonewall is planning a redo of the Westport waterfront neighborhood and filed a brief arguing that BWRR does not have condemnation power and if it did, then it is time-barred under state law from exercising that authority. Namely, it has been more than four years since the Baltimore City Council approved a transfer of a railroad franchise to BWRR. They argued further that the company needs to get additional approval from the Maryland Public Service Commission and the Baltimore City Council to use condemnation power, which it does not have.

Ausby agreed with the Stonewall attorneys and dismissed BWRR's action to condemn the property in Westport for use in building the maglev in that area. The judge said further that the maglev is not "an actual railroad." It has wheels that lift like that of a plane.

Amy Hansen contributed to this report.

Both proposed maglev routes go through the Westport neighborhood of Baltimore and the Baltimore City Circuit Court judge just ruled the project does not have eminent domain.

Voters who request mail-in ballots by mail should also be aware that no ballots will be sent out or distributed prior to Friday, October 8. Applications must reach the city clerk no later than noon on Monday, November 1. To be counted, ballots must be received by the city clerk no later than 6 p.m. on Election Day, November 2.

While the city and county are both strongly encouraging voters to take advantage of the availability of mail-in voting, there is no pressure to do so. All of what have come to be thought of as Greenbelt's usual voting methods will be available as well, including a number of sites for early voting and for in-person voting at one's precinct on Election Day. Information on those dates and locations will be published in a later issue of this paper.

Independent Analysis of Maglev Ridership ...Just Published

In January, the Federal Railroad Administration released its ridership forecast for the proposed Baltimore-Washington maglev, but the agency has withheld from the public the contractor report that calculated this forecast. For this reason, you want to read Owen Kelley's just published 92-page independent analysis. He shows that the official ridership forecast is suspiciously high, meaning that the maglev would do little to address the region's transportation needs.

Kelley's analysis can be purchased online and at the craft fair to be held this Sunday afternoon, September 5 at the Roosevelt Center as part of the Greenbelt Labor Day Festival. For more information and for a preview of Kelley's two new books, visit <https://www.greenbeltonline.org/okelley>

Franklin Park’s Annual Back To School Event Was Fun

by Denise Knight

Franklin Park Back to School Pep Rally

On Tuesday, August 24, volunteers and sponsors comprised of Franklin Park residents, Reid Temple AME Church, Community Officer Sharnice Hawkins-Graham, Minority Access Group, RUAK (Random Unselfish Acts of Kindness) and Kids Go Round Store gathered for Franklin Park’s Second Annual Back to School Pep Rally.

Over 100 backpacks were distributed. Close to 400 residents received additional school supplies such as Chromebooks, free reading books, uniform vouchers, headphones, gift cards, masks and more. The effort made a huge difference and impacted many homes as youths prepare to go back to in-person learning.

The aim of the event was not just to donate supplies but to provide an avenue to get the community excited about the upcoming school year. This was achieved by setting up fun challenge stations incorporating math, spelling and Minute to Win It activities, as well as a STEM section to get students into school mode. Positive feedback was received, as well as recommendations to make 2022’s event even bigger and better.

ERHS Girls Soccer Navigates Thunder Storms, Pandemic; Building a Team

by Patrick Gleason

Despite complications from the pandemic and an especially stormy August, the pieces of the puzzle are starting to fall into place for the Eleanor Roosevelt High School (ERHS) Raiders girls soccer team. Looming lightning strikes cut their final scrimmage against Bethesda-Chevy Chase short, and thunderstorms have forced several practices indoors, but the Raiders enter the regular season confident and ready to improve. Although Roosevelt returns only five healthy players who have competed in a full varsity season before (junior Maya Miller and senior Man Lun suffered season-ending injuries before tryouts even began) the team is excited to return to the field and slowly piece together their puzzle. Senior goalkeeper Isabela Martins leads a promising Roosevelt defense that returning juniors Sarai DeSouza and Grace Zack help solidify, while returners Sophie Swart and Julia Beckmann will catalyze the Raider offense.

But it is the mixture of new talent that will dictate success this fall as Roosevelt replaces 15 graduated seniors from the classes of 2020 and 2021. Former junior varsity standouts Mia Hamilton and Azinwi McKinney will add to the Raiders’ defensive identity, along with Victoria Obisesan, a sophomore who lost her freshmen season to the pandemic. Freshmen revelations Jada Savage and Sadie Swart – sister to senior Sophie – will be fundamental in the Raiders’ goal to increase their speed of play, while senior Ameenah Khan and Kaia Booker are also varsity newcomers who will strengthen the Raider midfield. Junior Ariana Phillips has proved dynamic thus far, despite returning from an ACL injury suffered during the 2019 basketball season. Phillips, the leading junior varsity (JV) goal scorer from 2019, will work with Charlesima James to help Sophie Swart shoulder the scoring load.

Meanwhile, Kamilla Yokley is the only returning member of a JV squad that conceded zero goals during a perfect 2019 season. Freshmen Alyssa Casey, Rayhanna Mani and Arianna Casalini have excelled in the Roosevelt JV midfield thus far, while Gabriella Martinez and Nikki Lilja highlight the team’s defense, and Keiry Salmeron scored the team’s first goal during their scrimmage at Southern High School. After completing their scrimmage schedule, the Raiders are ready to work.

The varsity team begins with Saturday morning games at the Montgomery Blair Tournament on September 4; both teams travel

“Tour de Greenbelt” Bike Ride
City of Greenbelt Recreation Department
Join Mayor Pro Tem Emmett Jordan along with Jeff and Laurie Lemieux from Proteus Bicycles on a bike ride around Greenbelt. The ride will take place in two stages, both starting at the New Deal Cafe:

The first stage will leave at 9AM and go down Crescent Road, across Kenilworth Avenue, and over the Beltway to the Greenbelt Station neighborhood in Greenbelt West, and then back to the New Deal Cafe.

The second stage will leave at approximately 10am and cross the Spellman overpass, go through Eleanor Roosevelt HS, across Greenbelt Road at the pedestrian signal and down to Schrom Hills park, returning to the New Deal Cafe via Hanover Parkway.

Note, this is not a supported ride, although we will take an easy pace. Most of the ride will be in bike lanes but there will be some riding in traffic, such as on Crescent Road, so it might not be suitable for families with very young children riding solo. It's a great way to explore commuting around Greenbelt by bike! Helmets are required! Please make sure that your bike is in working order and your tires are inflated. Don't have a bike? Rent one from our Capital Bike-share stations.
